

My dream residence

My dream house would be somewhere near the lake in the middle of nowhere. The house should not be out of civilization, but far enough to find a peace there. It would be classical detached house with two floors. I would share it with my wife and kids.

Outside of the house would be a big pool and the playground for the kids. Big beautiful garden would be nice too, but I am wondering who would take care of it. Of course some plants would be there so it does not look dull. Next to the house would be a garage for a family car and sports car of mine.

As you would come through the front door there would be a big hall like in the chateau from Matrix Reloaded. Downstairs would be large kitchen connected with the dining room for the family events. In the living room would be a big 55" television and a fireplace for the cold winter days. In the room with lake view would be my study where I would work. Because I love watching movies, one room I would pick out for a small cinema. Upstairs would be bedrooms, bathroom and a spare room with a balcony which would overlook the lake.

To make my dream come true I should stop dreaming and start doing something for it. Getting good education on international school and well-paid job then might be the right way.
