Briefly about Prešov:

Prešov is a regional seat and an important social, administrative, economic, and cultural centre of the region of Prešov and north-eastern Slovakia. It is situated in the central part of eastern Slovakia and has long since been on an important junction, that has conditioned its development since the Middle Ages. This position pre-determines a promising development of the city in the united Europe.

At present, Prešov performs varied functions ..

Prešov is a significant economic centre ..

Of extraordinary importance is the educational function of the city ..

The Medieval Town of Prešov:

Thanks to extensive municipal privileges granted by King Andrew III. In 1299, a medieval town had arisen in the valley of the river Torysa out of a German-Hungarian-Slovak trade settlement by the end of the thirteenth century.

Historical Čierny Orol:

Is located in the complex generally known as the Čierny Orol and that is why it gradually accepted this name as well. However, it is a bit more complicated in reality. The city architectonic complex developed from the pub Čierny Orol which was documented at the beginning of the 16th century.

Churches in The Past of Prešov:

- The Roman-Catholic Church
- Evangelical Church
- The Greek-Catholic Church
- The Jewish Religious Community
- The Orthodox Church

The Parish Church of St. Nicholas:

The church of St. Nicholas is indisputably the most important historical object of the city of Prešov. It is the oldest building and the only completely preserved Gothic sacral construction in the city. The Gothic three-aisle church, the so-called “hall church”, was common especially in the German areas. In the old Hungarian times, it was considered to be one of the perfect hall churches.

The Population of Prešov:

The present population of Prešov is 95,486 (year 2004). It belongs in the group of big cities, which is formed by cities, whose population is between 50,000 and 100,000. If the city exceeded the magical line of 100,000, it would gain the right to use the title of metropolis.

The Parallel:

Prešov is the only Slovak city which may pride itself on the fact that through its historical centre runs the parallel of the 49° of the northern geographical latitude.

The Beginnings of Organised Sports in Prešov:

Prešov became an important centre of sports in Slovakia in the 1850s.
